Students log into google classroom and access the day’s assignment. It will tell them step-by-step what to do and we will go over it in the google meet. If the assignment is in Savvas, (students know what this is) it automatically saves their work. If the assignment is in google classroom, students turn their work in there. (We went over this again today.) If they have trouble with any of this and we are not meeting face to face, they can comment under the assignment. Google emails me and I will answer them asap. There could be assignments given in noredink and commonlit. If students forget their username/password, they should message me in the comments or tell me during our meeting time and I will get them on it.

My expectations: Show up every day on time. Leave your camera on but mute your mic until asked to unmute. Contribute when called on, when they have something to share or if they have a question. Follow the directions in google classroom and in our meet and do their assignments daily.

My RTI students know to work on Edgenuity daily. Because there is no “RTI” classroom, I will check in with those students when I see them in the regular meet.
